MIRFIELD CENTRE

A study day open to all with the Companions of the Community of the Resurrection

Today we are very conscious of the need to share our faith, to engage in mission in order that others may come to know the love of God.

This day offers a way of looking at the stages of faith - hearing, understanding and proclaiming – by taking a journey in song.

We shall look especially at the way in which western Christians in the first millennium sang and proclaimed their faith and ask what it might tell us today.

Who are the Companions of the Community of the Resurrection?

They are people who live away from the Community but share the Charism of the Community. In particular they:

- live the baptismal vocation of all Christians through a commitment to each community to which they belong and to the Community of the Resurrection
- make a commitment to Eucharistic worship, corporate and private prayer and the use of the sacrament of reconciliation according to conscience
- make a commitment of time, talents and money.
